

THE DAY IN MACON.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM THE CENTRAL CITY.

Short News Notes and Gossip Items. Caught on the Run—Seven Persons Killed by a Train—Events in the Courts—Personal Paragraphs and Brief Mention of Interesting Gossip.

MACON, September 22.—[Special.]—This morning at 5 o'clock a wood train ran into a crowd of Texas ponies at Tobaccoe bridge, a few miles below Macon, on the Southwestern railroad. They had been sent out to Hollis's farm by a driver to graze on the pasture. They all huddled together at the foot of the bridge and the engine of the wood train plowed through them, killing three by knocking them off the embankment, a third was jammed up and killed, and three others were carried into the bridge, and dropping through the ties, were fatally injured. They were unbroken ponies, fresh from the plains, worth about fifty dollars apiece.

Engineer Joe Brown and Fireman Kennedy were both slightly injured. The tender of the train, which carried twelve cars, alone was derailed. The regular passenger train was not delayed.

Recorder's Court.

MACON, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—In recorder's court today Ed Woodson and Charles Johnson were fined $2.50, or three days in prison, for fighting.

Fred Elm, for fighting and throwing rocks on the streets, was fined the same. The defendant, Lewis Lester, the watch thief, was released, and afterward a warrant was taken out for him. He has not been caught.

Walter McCarter paid $5 fine in each of his two cases.

Kaiser Seabrooks paid $5 fine for bad conduct. John Payton got on a drunk last night and caused Officer Lowenthal and cut up otherwise. He was fined $25, or sentenced twenty-five days in the gaol.

Bennett's Wife.

MACON, September 22.—[Special.]—A letter was received today from the wife of G. H. Bennett, who is a paralytic, and lives in Atlanta. She desires knowledge of her husband, who deserted her and came to Macon last year. He stole a shirt and was sent to the penitentiary. After his release he seemed broken-hearted, and soon disappeared from Macon.

Big Association.

MACON, September 22.—[Special.]—A big Primitive Baptist association occurs at Mountain Spring church, seven miles below Grapewickville, beginning on Friday next and closing Monday. There will be a large attendance.

SICKNESS IN ARLINGTON.

Occasioned by the Foul Miasma About the Place.

ARLINGTON, Ga., September 22.—Mr. R. O. Oliver McNeil is confined to his bed with a severe attack of malarial fever. He is taking medicine on Monday, and immediately called Dr. G. W. McNeil, who has been very successful in the treatment of this prevalent disease. This disease is becoming very prevalent in this section now, which is supposed to be caused by the foul miasma arising from the ponds that were filled up by the continued rains some time ago, and are now drying up. Mr. McNeil has had the hemorrhagic fever once before and passed through it successfully.

Specimen Fishing in Georgia.

ARLINGTON, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—Messrs. G. H. Colley and Dave Danlap took a seine and five starlings "brothers in black" and went down to Davis mill pond about four miles from town and caught over a hundred pounds of fine fish. They caught trout, bream and red horse fish. Mr. Colley is one of our best citizens, largest and most successful farmers, and is a whole-souled, congenial and social Christian gentleman. He and Mr. Danlap are experienced fishermen.

Marriage in Social Circle.

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—Married this morning, at Newborn, Newton county, by Elder J. E. Eubanks, Mr. D. M. Bateman (a candidate for the legislature from Houston county), to Miss Mary A. Wright, of Newborn. The happy couple left this morning on the 11:17 train, via Atlanta, for their home near Byron, Houston county.

"I was all run down," and Hood's Sarsaparilla proved just the medicine I needed," write hundreds of people. Take it now.

COLUMBUS CHRONICLES.

A Deserted Woman Attempts Suicide—The Registration.

COLUMBUS, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. John Henley have been occupying a room on the second floor of the Old Fellows building. About three weeks ago Henley left his wife and has not been back since. He is in the city, and although she has written him several letters appealing to him to return, he has paid no attention to them. Tonight about 8 o'clock the poor woman attempted suicide by taking an overdose of chloroform. The fact became known, however, in a short time after she had taken it, and the city physician at once summoned, and late tonight it is thought she will recover. She is a young woman and has been married about seven years. She and her husband have not lived happily together. They have no children.

The registration books closed this evening. Only 387 voters registered in the city of Columbus. The country precincts have not yet returned. The country precincts have not yet returned.

John Daniel, a negro employed on the Georgia Midland, had a leg broken by a falling tree today.

The infant son of Mr. Moore Taylor, of this county, died today.

A little son of Frank Ballou had an arm broken today by falling from a tree.

The membership of the public library has been increased 111 within less than a week, and there is now doubt that it is a fixture.

The rivalry among the street buyers in this city has reached the point of one-on-one fight above the market place.

ALBANY'S HOTEL.

The Opening of the Barnes House, Under Mrs. Hamilton.

ALBANY, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—The Barnes house, Albany's premier hotel, has been reopened, after a thorough renovation, and is now prepared to entertain the traveling public. Mrs. Hamilton, a northern lady, but recently of Atlanta, has assumed management of the house, and having had long experience in this line of business, will, doubtless, prove satisfactory to all.

The reopening of the Barnes house gives Albany another hotel facility. The Commercial, the Artesian and the Commercial, under the management of Messrs. May and West, respectively, are too well known to the public to require any introduction or recommendation. Suffice it to say that these three hotels are a credit to our city.

Now that we possess such excellent hotel accommodations for the ensuing winter, it is expected that our attractive city of Albany will be visited by a large number of the great hordes of northerners, who seek warmer climes for hibernation. They will certainly find it worth their while to spend a season in our city. The hospitality of our people and the invigorating and healthful effect of our artesian water will exert a charm over the visitor which he will be loath to break.

Our artesian wells, eight in number, have proved to be a great boon for Albany and this vicinity. The pure, sparkling water, welling up from its inexhaustible source, deep down in the bowels of old mother earth, possesses, as is well known, valuable health giving medicinal properties, and some marvelous cures have been effected by its use.

CARVED BY A GIN.

Two Men Find Themselves Amputated by a Cotton Gin.

MILNER, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—John Yarborough, who is running a public gin at this place, while endeavoring to arrange in getting the roll of cotton on the gin saws, got his hand very badly cut by the saws, and yesterday Mr. Sidney Pughly, a young man at work at Captain A. J. White's gin, in attempting to throw some loads of cotton under the gin breast, in order to see them attach themselves to the roll, his hand was caught by the saws, cutting his hand and arm in a fearful manner. Both parties are doing well this morning.

TWO NEW BARBERS.

And a Big Increase in the Town's Receipts Therefrom.

ARLINGTON, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—The new council placed the license at four hundred dollars for each barber, and Mr. J. T. Saxton took out license, thinking, no doubt, he would still have a monopoly, but H. F. Scarborough & Co. have also taken out license, and the town is a boom. We have two barbers instead of one, and they have eight hundred dollars in the town treasury in lieu of the two hundred dollars which was the license fee for last year.

The new council are settling the question of appropriating six hundred dollars for the purpose of draining the ponds which are nearest town, and if they take this wise step, they will preserve the health of the town and will immortalize themselves.

The Fugitive Recaptured.

QUITMAN, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—Sheriff W. H. Neil returned yesterday with Charles Nelson, one of the prisoners who broke out of the jail here and who was captured by our worthy sheriff in Columbus, Nelson, a white man, who made an assault with intent to ravish a little daughter of Mr. Dixon Smith's, a worthy citizen of our county a few weeks since. The little girl was alone at the house, when the intruder came, and she was crying for help. The villain would have accomplished his purpose, but for the timely arrival of the sheriff, who, with his posse, had been hunting the prisoners who broke jail about a month ago.

Revels in Elberton.

ELBERTON, September 22.—[Special.]—The Serpents Baptist association is in session at Dove's creek church, six miles from Elberton, with an attendance of about 100 ministers in attendance. Services are being carried on at the Baptist church in Elberton. Rev. Mr. Fletcher, of Atlanta, one of the editors of the Index, preached an excellent sermon there on Monday night.

Rev. J. W. Roberts, pastor of the Methodist church here, has begun a protracted meeting at his church that promises to be one of the most interesting held here in a long time. His congregations are large, business being generally suspended during the hours of service.

Religion in Franklin.

FRANKLIN, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—Revs. G. H. Cartledge and A. J. Hughes are now carrying on a protracted meeting at the Methodist church.

The Fugate Baptist association convened with Poplar Springs Baptist church Thursday last, and adjourned Sunday evening. It was largely attended by clergy and laity. The attendance on Sunday was 2,000 people.

The Martin Institute.

JEFFERSON, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—The Martin Institute, a school for the deaf, blind and idiotic, having opened with an attendance of 120 students. Professor B. T. Hunter, its president, stands at the head as an educator, while his two accomplished daughters, Misses Fannie and India, are most able assistants.

The Savages in Thomsville.

THOMSVILLE, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—A party of 355 Indian captives, mostly women and children, passed through here under a strong guard of United States soldiers for Fort Marion, Fla. The train stopped about three hours in Thomsville, and a large number of citizens congregated around the cars to see the ugly savages.

A Heavy Rain.

CARNEVILLE, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—This place was visited by a heavy rain accompanied by considerable wind. It rained in torrents for some half-hour and the view was dark. The water courses will be considerably swollen and much damage may be done to crops on low lands.

Franklin Superior Court.

CARNEVILLE, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—Franklin superior court will convene Monday next. There are three prisoners in jail to be tried for felonies—two for forgery and one for perjury.

HUMPHRIES' CONFESSION.

THE DOOMED MAN TALKS OF HIS HORRIBLE CRIME.

He Was Drunk When He Committed It—Quitting His Death—How He Looks and Talks—The Murder of the Two Girls—A Strange Confession—Review of the Case.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—Your correspondent arrived here at six o'clock p. m., and proceeded immediately to the jail. Captain C. W. Ennis, the watchful sheriff, was on guard, and conducted the reporter to Frank Humphries' room.

"How are you getting along, old man?" "All right, sir; good night," said the reporter, and left him.

The prisoner occupies the extreme southwestern corner of the jail on the second floor. He is provided with every convenience, and was leisurely smoking a cigar when the reporter approached him.

Your correspondent then sought Colonel C. C. Brantley, who is an old friend of Frank's, and together they visited the jail yard. By courtesy of Captain Ennis, Captain Brantley called Frank up, and the gleam of a cigar showed upstairs.

"Frank, old fellow, I know you well, will you not tell me something?" "I have told all I know," said the reporter.

"Did you confess that you killed the ladies. Now will you confess that there was a rape committed?" "I told all I knew in the published report."

"Frank, old fellow, are you prepared to meet your God with all this thing in your bosom?" "I have told you all I know. That is all I have got to say about it."

"Did you pretend anything of this kind when you left Eliza Humphries' house?" "I was crazy with whisky and don't remember what I did."

"Frank, which did you shoot first?" "I shot her first, I shot Miss Ella down, and after she fell, she said: 'Do not trouble me further, but leave me alone.'"

Humphries then said that he wanted to warn all young men against the use of whisky. He repeated the same old story of persons who began to drink and go to a half gale. All the while he was puffing away at a cigar, and appeared as nonchalant as a lecturer trained to the platform in some great city.

"Frank, did you cut off your shirt sleeves, and in any other manner try to hide your crime?" "I can't tell. I just have a dim recollection of cutting my sleeve somewhere near an old nail hill."

"Frank, did you do that after or before the murder?" "As I said, it was after the killing, and I just remember it."

"Frank, I hate to tell you good bye without asking you was there an outrage committed on these bodies or not?" "I don't remember, but the evidence was that there was an outrage committed."

"Did you remember Frank, and we will bid you good bye forever. Did you cut Miss Ella's throat after you shot her?" "I don't know. I have no recollection at all about it."

"How far did you drag the bodies?" "With that the reporter bade him good bye and Frank Humphries was left to brood over the bloody crime for thirty-six hours. He appears to be totally unconscious of the fearful deed he has committed, and were he not such a monster his conduct would seem heroic."

Under the light of the quiet stars he was left to his melancholy musings. He will make an address to the few who are to hear him on the day of his execution. He has virtually acknowledged everything, and his last words were:

"You ought to hear my poor wife tell how I met her next morning."

Later a letter was sent by your correspondent to Frank Humphries, who, in a few lines, expressed his deep sorrow and also conveyed a deep warning to those of his friends who are addicted to liquor drinking. A strange coincidence, that the man who was charged with the murder was on Friday, he was arrested on Friday, and tried and sentenced on Friday. He told Jailer Birdsong of the confession he had made, and he was on Friday, and was sentenced to be hung on Friday. Every act of his life seemed to be on the unlucky Friday.

TODD'S MURDERER.

To Be Again Placed on Trial in Ellaville Next Week.

ELLAVILLE, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—Next Monday the superior court will convene, and the murder case of the State vs. Charles Blackman will be called for trial on Tuesday. Every juror in the county has been summoned to attend, as the case has been once tried. It will be remembered that on the fifth of September, 1885, one of our most popular young men, George Todd, was shot by a man named Charles Blackman, who was charged with the murder. It was thought that he would undoubtedly be lynched, but he was saved by the timely arrival of the sheriff, who, with his posse, had been hunting the prisoners who broke jail about a month ago.

On the fourth Monday in September he was placed on trial, and the jury, after being out some minutes, returned a verdict of guilty. Judge Fort thereupon sentenced the defendant to the State prison for life, and the jury next week will certainly say so.

BURGLARY IN SUMMERVILLE.

A Barber's Substitute Creates a Little Sensation.

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Burglars are still getting in their work here. Wesley Drew, the barber, left town a few days ago, leaving a substitute to work about twenty years of age in charge of his shop. Retaining the afternoon he found his shop locked and the barber number two gone. Upon investigation he found that number two had carried off everything portable about the shop, except the striped pole. He was last seen going in the direction of Rome.

Mr. Levy, who lives near Rome, lost a fine horse the night after the barber left. It is believed that the man that stole the barber shop got the horse also. He is a bright fellow, and is closely cut, which grows low on his forehead, and weighs about 160 pounds.

CALHOUN ACQUITTED.

A Legal Triumph for Some Talbotton Lawyers.

TALBOTTON, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—The entire day was consumed in the argument of counsel in the case of the State vs. C. Calhoun, assant with intent to murder. It was given to the jury at 4 o'clock, and in less than half an hour a verdict of not guilty was returned. Calhoun was unanimously acquitted. While the character of the assault was an aggravated one, yet the character of the assault, while under the influence of liquor was bad. The defendant, with his statement, had to combat the worst testimony of about a dozen witnesses.

A Man's Wife should always be the same.

especially to her husband, but if she is weak and nervous and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they make her feel like a different woman. At least so they all say, and their husbands say so too!

THE STATE CAMPAIGN.

A Live Campaign in the Third Senatorial District.

BLACKSBAR, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—The campaign in the third senatorial district is interesting and is attracting considerable attention throughout the state.

A convention composed of delegates from one county only undertook to make a nomination, which they had no right to do. They adjourned believing they had nominated Mr. Avant. Investigation showed that they had not, and sixteen out of the twenty-five delegates have so certified. Mr. W. G. Brantley entered the race, and challenged Mr. Avant to a joint discussion, which was declined, and an active and separate canvass by each of them has since been going on. Mr. Brantley has invited Mr. Avant to allow the people to settle the matter in a primary election, and Mr. Avant rejected this proposition.

Mr. Brantley's friends are exceedingly confident of his election, as the sentiment of the people throughout the district is for him.

Mr. Avant and Mr. Brantley are both young men, one a Primitive Baptist preacher, the other a lawyer. They were pitted against each other two years ago for the house, and Mr. Brantley was elected, and naturally the friends of both parties are much in earnest for their favorite.

The Democratic Nominee.

QUITMAN, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—George F. Newton, for the last eight years tax collector, was nominated as the democratic candidate for the legislature at the recent primary election in Quitman county. He was opposed by several candidates, and won by a plurality of twenty. He is a man of sterling worth, and in the event of his election, he will watch the interests of his county and the state with a fidelity and devotion which will certainly be elected by a good majority.

The Primaries in Walton.

MORRIS, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—The primary held in this county for candidates for the legislature resulted in the nomination of Messrs. James M. Gresham and W. W. Clay. The nominees are opposed by Dr. Galloway and Dr. Long, independents, and the race will be very close and exciting. Should all the negroes vote for the colored candidate, his chances for election are good.

Dr. Paul Faver Nominated.

GEFFIN, Ga., September 22.—[Special.]—The convention for the twenty-sixth senatorial district met today and nominated Dr. Paul Faver, of Fayette county, as the democratic nominee for this district.

Dr. Faver was nominated by acclamation, and his selection gives general satisfaction.

DEATHS IN GEORGIA.

Hon. J. W. Cureton, of Dade, is dead.

Died in Social Circle on Monday, the 20th instant, Mrs. Sarah E. Lyle, wife of A. Lyle. She had been sick some time, and was taken by a sudden attack of apoplexy. She was a native of Georgia, and was a member of the Methodist church.

Thomas S. Martin, a prominent merchant, planter, and one of the most highly respected citizens of Macon, died yesterday morning at his residence. He was a native of Georgia, and was a member of the Methodist church. He was a man of great wealth, and was a member of the Georgia legislature.

The Milledgeville Union says that the anti-prohibitionists of Baldwin county have taken the prohibition case to the supreme court. Judge Lawson decided the case in favor of prohibition, but charged the costs in the case to Baldwin county. Judge Sanford appealed from this decision to the supreme court, in regard to the payment of costs. The anti-prohibitionists have concluded that inasmuch as the case will go to the supreme court upon one point, that they would appeal from the whole decision in the lower court.

The Quitman Free Press, the Thomasville Times and the Albany News are in a smart over some alleged mistake made by the late second district congressional convention. The paper says that the convention did not intend to drop the controversy, and turn in and see which can give Mr. Turner the largest vote.

The Madison Madonian says: If there is any way possible for the legislature to make it a law to make the judges of the superior courts using their official positions as a means of political preference, we trust it will be passed. The anti-prohibitionists have concluded that inasmuch as the case will go to the supreme court upon one point, that they would appeal from the whole decision in the lower court.

At the end of last week Social Circle had already received over fifty bales of cotton. Amosius will furnish thirteen students to Wesleyan female college this year.

In six weeks the last license will expire in Stewart county, and then the great drought will prevail.

The Athens Banner computes that in the past forty years not less than $100,000,000 have been paid in Augusta, in the settlement of estates, gone to Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Kentucky, Rhode Island and Europe.

Among the findings of the State county grand jury are the following paragraphs: We congratulate the citizens of our county that it is evident that crime is on the decrease in this county. A just cause for congratulation is some way connected with carrying concealed weapons. We earnestly insist on all good citizens to aid in the suppression of the pernicious violation of law. We believe the partial suppression of the liquor traffic has greatly decreased crime. The grand jury has no objection to traffic would reduce the cost of our county fifty per cent.

Among the students who entered the Middle Georgia college last week was Mr. Garrard Walley, of Macon county. He is sixteen years of age, six feet nine inches in height and weighs 184 pounds. He entered the second class.

There is a great demand for boarding houses in Athens.

The city council of Dalton has accepted Mr. L. J. Wagner's plans for a water-works plant in that town, and an election has been ordered authorizing the issuing of $100,000 worth of bonds for the purpose of building them.

The prospects for a big trade in Jackson this fall is brighter now than ever before.

Turned Into a Picnic.

From the Monroe, Ga., Advertiser.

Those delegates who took "French leave" of the Rehebech association to attend a Primitive association near The Rock, found upon their arrival at The Rock, that their point of destination was eight miles away, and being without transportation, they compromised the matter by taking in an enjoyable picnic. They will doubtless be able upon their return home, to report which is the more pleasant, a picnic or an association, as they divided their time between the two.

A Profitable Turkey.

From the Lumpkin, Ga., Independent.

Mr. George Usher has a turkey hen which has certainly done a good year's work. She first set on twenty-one eggs, fifteen of which she hatched. She raised seventeen turkeys from the twenty-one eggs, and during the time she was raising the brood laid 60 more eggs. She is not for sale as she proposes to continue laying until the 29th, when the world is announced to come to an end.

A MORNING CHAT.

WITH THE EDITORS OF THE GEORGIA PRESS.

Violations of the Federal Constitution—The Augusta Chronicle as Discussed—The Character of the His Campaign—Judges on the Campaign—The Style of Architecture.

The Savannah Times grows retrospective over the proposed centennial of the adoption of the federal constitution. It proceeds to say:

"We have seen the legally elected governor of a sovereign state of the union set aside by military power at Washington, and the legislature of that state in session at the capital of the state, and only such men allowed to take their seats as members of that body as the central government had nominated. We have seen the United States soldiers and federal marshals armed about the polls in foreign lands, armed with pistols and bayonets to control elections in the interest of the party in power. We have seen a force bill introduced in congress, looking to the president of the United States and only falling of passage by the expiration of congress by limitation, which proposed to suspend the habeas corpus in the south, and hand over, bound hand and foot, to the tender mercies of the north. We have even seen things that these, had as they were, for we have seen a duly elected president of the United States deposed of his place under the forms of law, and a fraudulent executive installed in the white house in open defiance of law and liberty, and for the first time in our history open fraud triumphant in the American union, while the constitution of our fathers was remorselessly trampled under foot."

The Times must forget these little incidents, however, and forgive the fraudulent president and his gang, for they knew not what they did.

THE CONSTITUTION always knew that it was not in Pat Walsh to stay mad long at a time, and especially in view of the near approach of the 29th, when all men should have their accounts ready. In relation to a little matter of controversy between THE CONSTITUTION and the Chronicle, the good Brother Walsh says:

"We have nothing in the world but the kindest feeling for the editors of THE CONSTITUTION and for the city of Atlanta. We trust that both will continue to prosper. We have no objection to any newspaper writing up the strike and looking out anything else of public interest pertaining to the strike, but we have simply given in recent issues of this paper emphatic denial and corroborative proof of the fact that the 'unfortunate' messages received from the highlands of Lincoln and the lowlands of Warren' have nothing to do with the case. We have no kindness whatever to the 'great and growing city of Atlanta, and as for the 'great and good' CONSTITUTION, we have high appreciation of the men who conduct it."

Having thus laid his gift at the foot of the altar until he went out and made peace, Mr. Walsh comes back to the tangible things of earth, and very truthfully says:

The earthquakes may improve architecture or science, or perhaps it appears to be a fact that a few of the Charleston buildings had been constructed of improper materials, and it is manifest that unless they be visited upon the one hand and confidence on the other, houses may be dishonestly fashioned. We all remember how the altar at the King mill had to be rebuilt after the new came a government inspector who reveals the secrets of the architectural character of the houses of Charleston. We have heard some say that they could not, within the money limit allowed, put up a satisfactory dwelling. If this is the case, it is a
